Money off scheme for reusable nappies, in Dorset

The costs of bringing up a baby are something that every parent has to think about, but when buying nappies it doesn't have to cost the earth. One baby using disposable nappies for around two years costs upwards of £1,500 and adds 1.5 tonnes of nappies to household rubbish, costing the council over £170 per baby.

Sending all the disposable nappies in Dorset for Mechanical Biological Treatment (MBT), along with household rubbish, presently costs the council around £600,000 per year.

By choosing reusable nappies, parents can reduce their nappy bill by an average of £600 per baby and if the family is growing, putting subsequent children in reusable nappies will only involve the cleaning costs. Even if parents use a combination of reusable nappies and disposables, they will still save money, and may even be able to sell them on and get their money back, once their family is complete.

Forget thinking of reusables as the traditional terry pin nappy. Modern washable nappies are shaped and can be popped or velcroed into place. When used correctly they won't leak and can easily be used out and about or overnight. They can be used with biodegradable liners, allowing solid waste to be flushed down the toilet.

Dorset Council is offering Dorset parents £30 towards the cost of purchasing their reusable nappies.

Choose one of the following schemes:

Apply for a £30 voucher - Parents can spend their voucher with one of the retailers from our list of local reusable nappy retailers. The voucher will expire after two months

- babies must be aged 18 months or under and must live in the Dorset Council area
- only one claim can be made per baby
- parents will be asked to send proof of address plus a photocopy of the baby's birth certificate (or a copy of a MAT B1 form if the baby has not yet been born)
- parents may be contacted for feedback at a later date
- applications submitted for older children, with an existing medical condition, will be considered on a 'case by case' basis
